

Bookly Sample

A short walk through quiet rooms,
where paper remembers every turn.

Afternoon light

The window held a soft rectangle of gold.
Dust moved like quiet punctuation.
Somewhere a clock agreed with itself.

Turning pages

A corner lifts. Air slips under paper.

The next sentence arrives already warm.

Reading becomes a small physical act.

Page three of four.

The last leaf

Close the book and the room returns.
The story stays folded in the hands.
Bookly keeps only this session's place.
